Jacqueline DeCarlo : Fair Trade: A Beginner's Guide (Beginner's Guides) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Fair Trade: A Beginner's Guide (Beginner's Guides):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Susan O'Neill Great resource and overview! 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. An easy intro to understanding fair trade and all that is not... By Shannyn Required for a grad school class but it quickly became one of my favorites, and I reference it often. 8 of 10 people found the following review helpful. not impressed... By megan If you're looking for a cut-and-dry approach to fair trade, this is not the book for you. I was looking for something that really got into the functional side of fair trade business relationships, and was disappointed to see the author took the typical, tired, aid-focused approach. I firmly believe that artisans and agriculturalists in developing countries have a lot to offer in trade, and if we approach relationships with a win-win mentality, progress and development will follow. The author seems to believe the developed world needs to engage in these relationships as a form of assistance - I disagree 100%. Until we start to recognize the TRUE VALUE of products and services from developing countries, we will be trapped in a cycle of aid and handouts.

What's wrong with buying regular coffee? Does Fair Trade necessarily mean ethical trade? What impact can the average consumer have on global economics? Author and activist Jacqueline DeCarlo reveals why the movement has come to mean far more than just bananas, coffee, and chocolate. Grounded in the inspiring power of Fair Trade as a positive alternative to poverty, environmental destruction, and human exploitation, this enlightening book explains how we can make a difference. Providing an accessible explanation of the principles behind the movement and tracing its development into the powerful economic and social justice tool it is today, Fair Trade: A Beginner's Guide will rouse readers of all backgrounds to help end global injustice. Jacqueline DeCarlo is Fair Trade Program Officer of Catholic Relief Services.
